

KING GEORGE'S SON

James Ord Remembered at Georgetown University

BILL PAID BY THE LEGATION

James L. Ord, Superintendent of the Western Union at Chicago, is Grandson of the English Monarch, and Will Demand Estate of Five Million.

New York, Nov. 17.—That the British legation at Washington, paid the tuition of James Ord, the reputed son of King George IV. and his lawful wife, Mrs. Fitzhugh; that British officers visited the Georgetown University where he was trained, and that the original Ord bore a striking resemblance to the English king, is the gist of a statement made yesterday by Rev. John Fox, S. J., president of St. Peter's college, Jersey City.

"Father Fox was at Georgetown University for many years and was intimately acquainted with the Jesuit astronomer, Father Curley, who knew James Ord. Father Fox said:

"Father Curley died at the age of 94. I recall distinctly his speaking of the Ord mystery, on the lineage of a young student who he knew as a boy at the university. He told me that in those days, the latter part of the eighteenth century young Ord was spoken of as one of royal birth. Father Curley told me particularly that the bills contracted by young Ord were met by the British legation and that in his time British officers frequently visited the institution to inquire for young Ord. The two eldest sons of this Ord attended Georgetown University when Father Curley was stationed there as a priest.

"I met James Ord in 1889. I did not broach the subject, but when he gave me his name I recalled Father Curley's story.

"Although bent with age, there was a kingly bearing about him."

James L. Ord, the Western Union Telegraph superintendent in Chicago, is a direct descendant of the original Ord and believes himself the legitimate grandson of King George IV., and the legitimate heir to the estate of Mrs. Fitzhugh said to be $5,000,000.

WRECK OF MISSING SCHOONER

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 17.—Wreckage has been found in the vicinity of the Galloup islands, near Soudus, by incoming vessels. The description of the wreckage tallies with the build of the schooner Marie, coal laden, bound from Soudus to Napanee, Ont., which has not been reported for ten days. The Marie was owned and sailed by Captain Bacon, of Toronto.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS.

There are days of dizziness; Spells of headache, sideache, backache; Sometimes rheumatic pains; Often urinary disorders. All tell you plainly the kidneys are sick.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

J. Carson, employed at the Portland Lumber Co., foot of Lincoln street, who resides at 366 First street, Portland, Oregon, says: "I was feeling miserable with a depressing lameness around the small of my back all last summer. At first I did not pay much attention to it, but it continued to grow worse and finally became so bad that I thought I would have to lay off work. To bend or move quickly caused severe twinges. I was often attacked with dizzy spells, specks before my eyes and I had no ambition or energy. In the morning I arose as tired as when I went to bed. In fact, I had all the symptoms of a very severe case of kidney trouble. When I was suffering the worst I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box. I soon noticed an improvement in my condition, and the pain and aching across my back disappeared. About six weeks ago I was laid up with a siege of the grip for two weeks. Symptoms of kidney complaint made their appearance again and I resorted to Doan's Kidney Pills a second time. They just as thoroughly freed me of the trouble as in the former case. I cannot express what a change they have made in me. I simply feel like a different person."

NOTABLE TEA TOPERS

MEN WHO IMBIBED THE STIMULATING BREW TO EXCESS.

De Quincey Emptied His Cups From 8 o'clock at Night Till 4 in the Morning—Johnson a Shameless Tea Bibber—Why Hawthorne Quit.

The most hardened tea drinker may admit that tea drinking can be and often is overdone, and yet the best known tea toppers do not appear to have suffered in consequence of their excessive indulgence in the cheering cup.

De Quincey was a notable tea toper. In his picture of a winter evening in his cottage among the Cumberland hills he mentions the tea equipage on a table beside the fire, and behind the table a fair tea maker, whose duty it was to fill an almost endless procession of cups. De Quincey declares that he drank tea from 8 o'clock at night to 4 in the morning, and claims the infusion as "the favorite beverage of the intellectual."

Another tea toper was Hazlitt, the essayist, who was not only very fond of the beverage, but seems to have drunk it of extraordinary strength. We are told on excellent authority that he used two ounces for his breakfast and two for his tea, with cream, and that for this tea—the finest Soochong—he paid at first 14 shillings and afterward 12 shillings per pound. Perhaps this extravagance and excessive consumption of tea may account for some of the essayist's quarrelsomeness.

Cowper, as we all know, appreciated to the full the charm of the fragrant leaf, but there is hardly sufficient evidence to show that he was guilty of undue indulgence. The most famous tea toper was of course Dr. Johnson, whose feats with the cup which Mrs. Thrale filled so assiduously are too well known to need enlarging upon. His record appears to have been twenty-five cups, which he drank at a sitting, but in mitigation of judgment it should be remembered that in all probability the cups were much smaller than the teacups in use at the present time. Still, Johnson told Miss Reynolds in playful verse:

Thou canst not make the tea so fast
As I can gulp it down.

And he described himself as a "hardened and shameless tea drinker, who has for many years diluted his meals with only the infusion of this fascinating plant; whose kettle has scarcely time to cool; who with tea amuses the evening, with tea solaces the midnight and with tea welcomes the morning." It is an amazing confession, but we are bound to remember that this intemperate tea bibber lived to the age of seventy-five.

Johnson's record was equaled by Bishop Gilbert Burnet, the author of the well known "History of My Own Times," who is reported to have disposed of twenty-five cups in a morning. Another man of letters of a very different type, Nathaniel Hawthorne, who might have equaled the doctor, curbed his tea drinking propensities early. When he was a very young man Hawthorne was in the habit of visiting at a house where the hostess made excellent tea, and one evening when the visitor's cup was passed to be refilled she said: "Now, Mr. Hawthorne, I am going to play Mrs. Thrale to your Johnson. I know you are a slave to my tea." The young man made no reply, but he had no inclination to play the role assigned to him, and for five years from that night Hawthorne did not taste a cup of tea—a protest which seems as excessive in its way as the inclination which his hostess had attributed to him.

There have been other heroes of the teapot not a few. Hartley Coleridge may fairly claim a place among the tea toppers. Some one is said to have asked him once how many cups he usually drank and to have received the scornful reply: "Cups! I don't count my cups. I count by pots!" Then there have been others whom it would be hardly fair to rank as tea toppers, but who have shown marked devotion to the teapot. In recent days Mr. Gladstone and Dean Stanley would appear in this class, but indeed any list of enthusiastic lovers in recent times of what Waller called the "best of herbs" would be of most inordinate length.—London Globe.

Superior Precision.

A young American who is studying at Oxford was struck by the care with which his chambermaid cleaned his desk without disturbing his papers. To reward her he offered her some confections which he had brought from London.

"Mary, wouldn't you like some of this candy?"

"Ho, thank you, sir. Yes, sir. But hexcuse me, sir, this ain't candy; it's sweets."

Then she proceeded to give him a lesson in the difference between sugar or molasses candy and bonbons, chocolate confections and other sweetmeats or "sweets."

"Thank you for telling me the difference, Mary," said the student, somewhat amused. "In America we call it all candy."

"Ho, yes, sir; in America I fancy it's all the same, sir, but in Hingland we 'ave a nyme for beverythink."

A Unique Bridge.

The swinging bridge of wood and rope crossing a chasm in the Irish cliffs—Carrick-a-Rede and the Larrian—high above the sea, which breaks in foam and embroidery along the rocky coast, is unique and unmatched. It is only used during the salmon fishing season and connects the mainland with the huge rock whence the place derives its name. Whether sailing the sea or coming up from the mainland, the bridge seems but a fragile thing—a floating sidewalk supported by thin air and your imagination.

John Wesley and Tea.

John Wesley wrote in 1748: "I could not imagine what should occasion the shaking of my hand till I observed it was always worst after breakfast, and that if I intermitted tea drinking for two or three days it did not shake at all. Upon inquiry I found tea had the same effect on other persons of my acquaintance, and therefore saw that this was one of its natural effects, as several physicians have often remarked." After a daily practice of tea drinking for twenty-seven years Wesley left it off. The effects of relinquishing it fully answered his expectations. "My paralytic complaints are all gone. My hand is as steady as it was at fifteen. I save me £50 ($250) a year."
